How to Nominate Judges-There has been so much said in regard to "slates" and combinations made of Supreme Court of Appeals of men who ought not for one reason and another to be elevated to that exalted tribunal, that will be in a peculiar sense the duty of the approaching caucus of Democratic sembers of the Legislature to be careful that no unworthy man shall reach that office, and no unworthy motive or con sideration be permitted to influence the result. No method of nominating candies must be thought of which would enable, or could be thought to enable ess than a majority of the members of The custom of making more than on mination at a time is a vicious one and ought to be abandoned. Each judg ought to be exected on his own merits it this cannot be done if the caucu We for making more than one nomina tion at a time. The members who favor aking five nominations at a time d thus consent to divide one solid, substan lal vote into five nominal votes. No method which is objectionable ough be used. Would it not be better to eminate one candidate at a time? N other manner of pominating can alway be relied upon to secure a fair result of even three candidates can be nomi nated at once without committing some thing very like a wrong upon the candi tlates and upon the people. The usual answer to the objection we have raised to say, "Oh, we know that there are nly 120 members, and we know that 61 the votes." But this is a mistake, based | thing. upon the assumption that one fifth of a vote is equal to a whole vote; for whereas 600 nominal voxes are cast and counted as real votes, and therefore no fewer than 600 should be taken into the calculation when the result is being ascertained, yet the custom is to take only 120 into the calculation in deciding how

bers, and 61 votes be made sufficient to et, then there may be at least eight aspirants, each of them entitled to be each receive what is called a majority, r more than 60 of the votes. Is this ult possible? If so, such caucussing and such voting ought not to be tolerated.

The remedy is at hand. If the caucus des to nominate five candidates at cast five votes, then the first result ought he divided by five in order to ascertab of these fifths of votes would thus by such decision be found to have received 61 real votes, or a majority of the caucus,

But let us illustrate or exemplify our contention. There will be say 120 members in the caucus to nominate judges of the Court of Appeals, and each member to a nomination. What may result? Call the roll. Forty members out of 120 vote for Smith and Jones, 40 for Jones and Brown, and 40 for Smith and Brown, though only two nominations can be made at once. Here is the result:

	Smith.	Jones.	Brown,
The first 40 vote for Smith and Jones	40	40
The next 40 vote for Jones and Brown	*	40	40
The next 40 vote for Smith and Brown	40		40
A STATE OF THE STA	90	80	80

Smith, Jones, and Brown have each repelved more than 61 votes and all are nominated, though only two nominations were to be made and only two votes were cast by any member of the caucus, It will not change the result to set down the above vote as cast one by one instead of supposing that 40 members

The Times's Evidence-

e Times is unremitting and unrelent ing in its charges of election frauds. It persists in the belief that the Anderson-licCormick bill was passed to enable the Democrats to cheat their opponents. It likewise avows its conviction that the Democrats carry many counties by fraud-indeed that in many localities there are "no such things as elections," But we observe no readiness on its part to get its informants to go before the grand juries, there to make "clean breasts" of If it has no faith in grand juries, whither will it turn? Does it want a legislative committee to examine into this question of election frauds? If not, how does it propose to produce evidence upon which the two houses would be justified in uprooting our present election system?

A Closure Rule-

The Boston Globe calls upon Senator Hill, of New York, to press a closurerule upon the attention of the United States Senate. Such a rule will soon become a necessity, as without it no legislation can be done against the wishes of the minority in that body. Let the traditions and customs of the Senate be what they will, they must yield to the fact that the Senate was created that it might legislate.

> Richmond Primary Election Plan-There are now little more than sixty days of the legislative session left, and all who have business to bring before the two houses should be quick about it. Richmond, for her part, wants a legalized primary-election plan. This we must have passed at this session. It is expected to be in use at the municipal primary in May, and not to have it then will cause disappointment and dissatisfaction among Democratic voters. The work of drawing the bill in ques tion has been placed in the hands of a sub-committee of the City Democratic Committee, and we know that they have been gathering information as to primaryelection laws in other States, and we hope that they are now ready to draft our bill. The prime object to be aimed at is to make frauds committed at primary elections here punishable just as frauds committed at legal elections are. We feel sure that the people who pay the taxes will be perfectly willing to have primary expenses taxed upon the City Treasury, if that course be deemed ssential to the success of the plan. No rimary ought to cost more than $500. If there is a general law passed on this subject by the Legislature it will be too general to meet all of our wants and reulrements, and in any event, we would better have a special law for Richmond

A Hard Blow at the Sections. The Springfield Republican quotes an organ of the liquor trade as saying that a recent decision of an Indiana court was a severe blow at the liquor traffic, in that t said that the saloon was liable at comnon law, regardless of its license, for any damage to neighboring property its stablishment might inflict This decision, enforced in all the States of the Union, would put an end to the lawful traffic in intoxicating drinks. How greatly its enforcement would, on the other hand, increase the unlawful traffic in such drinks nobody knows. But we doubt whether the decision under con is a majority of 120, and so we know that sideration would be followed in many candidates received a majority of States. A license must be worth som

Still Dispensing Clothing.

The clothing dispensary was open again yesterday, and will be open regularly every day hereafter until the supply is exhausted. One thousand garments were distributed yesterday.

Dr. Parker is particularly anxious for more female clothing. He acknowledges the following contributions, which were turned over to the City Mission: Five barrels of crackers, from Warner L. Fleming; one barrel of bread, from L. D. Briggs, and one box of bacon, from No. 4 west Broad street.

The ladies of the City Mission are actively at work in seeking out the poor and needy, and are relieving much distress.

The committees appointed by the Citizens' Relief Association to solicit weekly contributions to the fund for the poor are urged to make report of their work to Mr. John Morton, treasurer, by Friday morning, January 5th. Each canvasser is requested to make a report of some kind, whether any work has been done by him or not. This is very necessary to the proper prosecution of the work.

Mr. S. Stern has received an answer

Jewish cemetery here. The Mayor promliese to comply with the request and ship
